

Table of Contents

Acknowledgements	11
Abbreviations and conventions	13
Published works by Samuel Beckett	13
Unpublished works by Samuel Beckett	13
Other works	14
Reference books	14
Beckett's correspondents	14
Introduction
La vie très quiétiste	17
Chapter 1
Dereliction into Literature: Quietism and Beckett's 1930s	23
Quietism in Seventeenth-Century Catholicism	25
Arthur Schopenhauer's Quietism	31
Beckett and Schopenhauer	35
Áskesis , Mysticism, and Belief	38
André Gide and Dostoevskian Quietism	42
Christian Mysticism	46
Quietism and Hellenistic Philosophy	47
A Basis for Quietism	51
Humanistic Quietism	58
Abject Self-Referring Quietism	65
Geulincx and Quietism?	68
Quietism continues	74
Conclusion	77

Chapter 2

A Sufferer of My Pains: Murphy and the Little World79

Tat tvam asi	84
The Alyosha Mistake.....	89
Luciferian Concentration.....	95
The Need for Brotherhood.....	101
Into the Big World.....	108
Conclusion.....	114

Chapter 3

Remnants of a Pensum: Decay and quietist aesthetics

from Dream of Fair to Middling Women to *Molloy*117

Moran's Prayer.....	119
Molloy and the Contemplative Life.....	124
The Thing in Ruins.....	130
The Fundamental Unheroic.....	139
The Tranquillity of Decomposition.....	151
Moran Checks the Rot.....	153
Moran's Putrefaction.....	159
Quietism, Violence, and Contradiction.....	166
Conclusion.....	168

Chapter 4

The Sage Under the Bo: How It Is, Ernst Haeckel and

Beckett's (German) Buddhism 169

Beckett and Buddhism: A Biographical and Critical History.....	170
The Western Religious Epic in How It Is	181
Darwin and the Natural Order.....	184

The Eastern Sage.....	187
Victims and Tormentors.....	193
The End of Suffering?.....	200
Conclusion	208
Chapter 5
so much short of blessed nothing: Salvation, rebirth and the late prose	213
Beckett's novel 'series'.....	215
Proustian Rebirth.....	218
Rebirth in the Trilogy.....	222
The Mystic Paradox.....	226
True refuge: from Ping to Lessness	234
Unhappily no: Company	239
The One True End to Time and Grief: Stirrings Still	248
Conclusion	255
Afterword.....	257
Bibliography.....	263
Published works by Samuel Beckett	263
Unpublished work by Samuel Beckett.....	264
Secondary material on Beckett.....	265
General works.....	272