

CONTENTS

No Respector of Class: The Ubiquitous Appeal of Late-Victorian Crime Fiction	ix
Paul Fox
Horrifying Ho(l)mes: Conan Doyle’s Bachelor Detective and the Aesthetics of Domestic Realism	1
Rudolph Glitz
Algernon Blackwood’s Modernist Experiments in Psychical Detection	33
George M. Johnson
Devolved Forms: Aesthetic Solutions to the Contentious Style of Arthur Machen’s “The Great God Pan”	59
Paul Fox
Double Lives, Terrible Pleasures: Oscar Wilde and Crime Fiction in the Fin de Siècle	79
Nick Freeman
The Medical Detective and the Victorian Fear of Degeneration	109
Aaron Parrett
The Science of Detection: Geology and Aesthetics in Victorian and Edwardian Detective Fiction	129
Helen Sutherland

Interpreting the Work of Art and Reading Clues: Aesthetics and Detection in Wilkie Collins’ The Law and the Lady	151
Elizabeth Anderman
The Art of Murder and Fine Furniture: The Aesthetic Projects of Anna Katharine Green and Charles Rohlfs	179
Lucy Sussex
Domesticating the Art of Detection: Ellen Wood’s Johnny Ludlow Series	203
Alison Jaquet
“The Accomplished Forms of Human Life”: The Art and the Aesthetics of the Female Detective	223
Therrie Hendrey-Seabrook
Trent’s Last Case: Murder, Modernism, Meaning	247
Linda Schlossberg
Contributors	267