

CONTENT

Preface	9
Introduction	11
I. The Culture of Paranoia	13
1. Paranoia in film	13
2. Paranoid postmodernity	16
On cultural paranoia	16
Conspiracy theory	17
Conspiracy culture	18
From a culture of conspiracy towards a culture about conspiracy	19
The ‘primal scene’ and the ‘cultural turn’ of paranoia	21
3. Visual paranoia in visual culture.....	23
On visual culture	23
Visual paranoia	26
II. Scopophilic Paranoia in Rear Window	29
1. A narration of scopophilia and paranoia.....	29
Narrative perspective.....	30
The spectator as voyeur	31
Introduction of the cinematic gaze as visual investigation	32
2. Scopophilic voyeurism.....	34
The photographer-voyeur	34
“There must be something wrong...” - How suspicion arises.....	36
3. The voyeur turns detective.....	37
The voyeur as paranoiac	37
The voyeur in the panoptic cinema.....	38
A conspiracy of voyeuristic investigation	39
Visual paranoia turns into a real threat.....	40
The unmasking of the voyeur	41
4. Scopophilic paranoia as visual investigation of reality	41
Scopophilic paranoia, visual investigation and the cinema	41
“Tell me what you see and what you think it means” - Visual investigation.....	42
Murder mystery disclosed - Order re-established?.....	45
5. The scopophilic paranoia plot in Rear Window	47

III. Photographic Paranoia in Blow-Up	69
1. Unexhausted circulation of distraction and interpretation	69
Narrative structure	70
The mystery of a crime - A plot within a plot.....	72
Narrative perspective	72
2. Capturing reality	73
The photographer as voyeur	73
The scene in the park	74
The factor of suspicion	75
3. Photographic investigation: the Blow-Up	75
Distortion of reality by representation.....	76
Photographic panopticism.....	77
Tracing the mystery in the traces of light	78
From enlargement to decomposition.....	79
The photograph as a simulacrum.....	80
Photographic narrative	80
Photographic paranoia and epistemological confusion	83
4. A reality is a reality is a reality.....	84
Thomas as a postmodern voyeur	84
Blow-Up as postmodern ‘master text’	85
5. The photographic paranoia plot in Blow-Up	87
IV. Scopophobic Paranoia in The Truman Show	103
1. A multi-layered reality	103
Narrative structure	103
Narrative perspective	104
2. A postmodern condition: hyperreality and panopticism	105
Lost in simulation.....	106
Visibility as a trap	107
3. Scopophobic paranoia	108
Delusions of grandeur and persecution.....	108
Truman turns detective.....	109
Agency panic	111
The protagonist escapes the script	111
4. The constructedness of postmodern reality	113
Truman as postmodern voyeur	113

A postmodern spectacle	114
A nostalgic spectacle.....	115
The postmodern as panoptic order	116
5. The scopophobic paranoia plot in The Truman Show	118
Conclusion	136
Bibliography	139