

TABLE OF CONTENTS

ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS	9
CHAPTER I
BETWEEN MODERNISM AND POSTMODERNISM:
DONALD BARTHELME'S NOVELS SNOW WHITE (1965) AND
PARADISE (1986)	13
CHAPTER II
POSTMODERNISM AND POPULAR CULTURE	37
II.1 The Western.....	43
II.1.1 Parody of the Western in American Literature (E. L. Doctorow's Welcome to Hard Times , 1960; and Robert Coover's The Ghost Town , 1998)	43
II.1.2 Reconsideration of Nature, Myths and Narrative Conventions of Popular Literature in Richard Brautigan's Novel The Hawkline Monster: A Gothic Western (1976), or Gothic Novel and Western in One.....	55
II.1.3 Parody of the Western (Film): Robert Coover's Adventure! Shootout at Gentry's Junction (1987).....	64
II.2 Pornography	79
II.2.1 Pornography, Western Myths and Violence in R. Coover's Spanking the Maid (1982).....	79
II.2.2 Pornography, Artificiality and Technology: R. Coover: Lucky Pierre in the Doctor's Office (1994).....	88
II.3 Fairy Tales as Popular Culture	101
II.3.1 Subversion of Myths: High and Low Cultures in Robert Coover's Briar Rose (1996).....	101
II.3.2 Parody in Robert Coover's Pinocchio in Venice (1991)	113
II.3.3 From Experience to Postmodern Sensibility (Robert Coover: The DOOR: A Prologue of Sorts , 1969)	123
II.3.4 Popular Culture, Media and Parodic Contexts of R. Coover's For the Kiddies: Cartoon (1987).....	134
II.4 Popular Autobiography and Travel Book in One (Richard Brautigan's An Unfortunate Woman: A Journey , 2000).....	142

CHAPTER III

POSTMODERNISM AND METAFICTION..... 151

III.1 Metafiction in Robert Coover’s Fiction (The Marker and The Hat Act, 1969)..... 151

III.2 Allegorical Metafiction— Paul Auster’s The Locked Room (1985) 165

III.3 Crossing the Genres— Fact or Fiction? Kurt Vonnegut’s Timequake
(1997)..... 184

NOTES..... 203

WORKS CITED..... 207